Personal Enjoy reading, traveling, almost anything to do with history, and spending time with my wife of twelve years and my great kids, Mario Jr who is 9 years old, and Mia Sofia who is 6.

Research Interests They include Economics, Economic Development and Growth, History, Finance. I'm currently devoting my research efforts in my dissertation paper at Case Western. The topic has been evolving from a broad economic development aspect, to a more detailed project on the impact that the rule of law, or lack thereof, has on the growth of small and medium sized firms in Mexico and how this in turn slows down the overall economic and social development of the entire country by not providing enough growth, jobs, profits, tax revenues required for a stable community leading to stagnant economies, low wages, weak institutions and higher levels of poverty, inequality and crime.
